

Koehlers and Wheelers Waging Double Engagement at Park This Afternoon

DOUBLE BATTLE IMPORTANT FOR OPPOSING CLUBS

Two Games This Afternoon
Mean Much to Hoosiers and Autos — Boosters' Tickets
Are Being Sold Rapidly.

At two bells this afternoon the Hoosiers and the Flint Autos started on a double engagement, the first of the year at Springfield park. The two-timer is an important one for both the Koehler and Wheeler bands. A double loss for the Hoosiers would mean a heavy cut in the season, while they now hold, while a pair of wins for the Wheeler fleet would place that club within striking position of the top hole.

Therefore the two games were expected to be tight battles. Hill and Duffy were slated to work against the Autos, while Wheeler had chosen Matts and McKinley, his left hander, to oppose the Hoosiers. The day of rest resulting from the rains of Monday was welcomed by both clubs, each having been engaged in some strenuous work during the past week. With Rhoades, the Autos' crack twirler, disposed of, the Koehler band were optimistic this morning and felt that the sailing would be much easier against Matts and McKinley, both of whom have fallen victims to the Hoosier sticks this season. It is probable that Rhoades will be shifted into the Wednesday fray by Wheeler, since he will have had two days' rest, because Eddie is anxious to cop from the Hoosiers. Vallandigham is scheduled to oppose the Flint band Wednesday.

Tickets Are Selling.
Members of the committees in charge of the booster tickets for "Baseball Day," Wednesday, June 10, are reporting good sales and state that the fans are responding liberally to the call for a big attendance at the annual sporting celebration. The tickets are 50 cents apiece and good for general admission. It is the intention of the Chamber of Commerce and the other organizations affiliated with the movement to dispose of at least 3,000 tickets.

Following the fourth and final tilt of the Flint series, Wednesday, the Hoosiers will start upon a 16-day road trip, opening at Bay City against the Beavers. Four games are scheduled at the Jenkins burg and Koehler is anticipating a dealer's hand, but a continuance of the present Hoosier speed will pull the Benders through with the long end of the series.

Next Monday the Hoosiers will stop at Flint for another four-day engagement with the Autos. On Friday and Saturday frays are scheduled with Jackson Convicts and on Sunday the Hoosiers will again be on the road, but with the Crickets as the attraction.

Long Home Series.
The next home series will be a long one, 15 contests being slated on the way. With an even break on the road during the next 10 days the Hoosiers should stick to the top unless the Crickets continue their winning stride and nose them out. The road series is a critical one, and the chance for the pennant depend largely upon the success abroad.

"Baseball Day" will be just six days before the close of the first half of the season, coming at a time when the teams should be fighting hardest for the pennant. Indications are that the race will be a close one with South Bend, Battle Creek and Flint as the strongest contenders and the fray with the Saginaw Ducks on the occasion of the boosters celebration should attract an enormous crowd.

Hoosiers Going Strong.
It is interesting to note that the Hoosiers have won 16 out of the last 19 games they have played. Furthermore they have climbed from the bottom to the top of the standing and in doing so have thrashed the two most highly touted clubs on the circuit, Battle Creek, Saginaw and Jackson.

Incidentally the Franktown crew has not shown any signs of leaving Hoosier park while the four straight wallpoppers handed the Saginaw crew caused "Ducky" Holmes to make the assertion that South Bend will win the first pennant. But the Crickets are right at the Hoosiers' heels while the Flint Autos have been showing increased speed in the last 10 days. Battle Creek threatens to give the Smith band a hard race but the Hoosier owner does not fear the Wagner crowd as much as he does Eddie Wheeler's outfit.

HAS SPRAINED ARM.
WASHINGTON, June 8.—After an X-ray examination of Joe Jackson's right elbow, it was announced that several ligaments were strained, but that no bones were fractured. Jackson will be out of the game about 10 days.

"Some Knockouts I Have Seen"

—BY ED. W. SMITH—
Famous Referee and Ring Expert.

In the late '80s there came out of Streator, Ill., a young carpenter who claimed he could fight. In proof thereof he brought with him a large person who had a large bankroll and the trip out considerable of a swath in Chicago's best sporting circles when they got on their stride.

The young fighter said his name was Billy Meyer. His backer and manager was Air Kennedy and the bankroll was named in coarse figures that stood six in a row with a large 5 just trailing the 8 sign.

In other words there was something like a half million dollars behind the young carpenter in support of the claim that he could whip Jim Corbett, the English champion, Jack McAuliffe, the boss of the whole division at the time, or any other man that breathed.

And the Streator party didn't care who knew it. They made a fuss. It attracted much attention. It frightened about 90 per cent of the lightweights into the bomb-collars whence they never did emerge.

Vague rumors of the deeds of the Meyer boy sifted into print in Chicago. The mule's time-honored kick had nothing on the blow yielded by this youngster with his right hand.

The Meyer people wanted McAuliffe first of all. He was the fellow they were aiming at. Failing to get him they would nick up the few stray crumbs that offered in the shape of matches with other men.

It happened there was a mighty good light-weight in the city at the time—Harry Gilmore, a Canadian who had fought the best of them and commanded considerable backing. He had met Meyer in a Wisconsin ring and had been beaten in five rounds. It was a scratch, he claimed, and he wanted another chance. He was impressive in his training. He looked every inch the old time fighter, game, willing, clever to a degree and thorough fit. His backers didn't demur when he asked their help to get on a second meeting with the doughty Meyer. They rather welcomed the chance to get even.

The matter was broached to Meyer and McAuliffe and the big bankroll fell in line in a hurry. It was arranged to pull off a finish affair with skin tight gloves at 133 pounds, the admission to be $20 per skull and the place to be named later. The train would start from such and such depot and that, in those days, was all you were expected to know.

The battle took place Jan. 19, 1888, and when we got off the train at 2 o'clock in the morning—the fight special then wasn't the comfortable affair it is today—we discovered we were in North Judson, Ind.

And it was so cold on the train and so much colder when we unloaded that everybody was all but speechless and the man with the big bottle was the most popular fellow in that section.

The ring was to be pitched in the only hall in town. It was on the second story over a saloon that was about two blocks from the depot. But the gang was marched through that bitter cold—it was at least 16 below zero—for at least 16 blocks in a circuitous way, for what reason nobody seemed to know.

The town marshal wasn't about—didn't appear till much later, and then was so busy at the bar he didn't mind what was happening elsewhere.

It was the usual case of standing up to the bar or loading around for over an hour before the men were ready. The main hitch was over the selection of a referee. This important selection was never made at that time until the ringside was reached. Finally Harry Gilmore, at that time one of the best heavyweights in the west, was chosen and agreed, after much persuasion, to act. It was entirely an honorary position.

Finally the men heavily blanketed, were brought in and the real battling began. Gilmore had some good St. Paul people behind him and they plunged. The farmers who followed with the fingers of their hands above the knuckles. The wristlets were rather longer and affords the wrist a little protection. Once in the ring there wasn't much time lost, which was a good thing as the men would have frozen stiff in their scant attire. The big heater in one corner didn't radiate to any great extent.

As they came out they presented a wonderful picture. Gilmore, the veteran, was cool, careful and alert, standing almost erect with a typical Jim Mace position. Meyer squatted some and held his right hand tightly pinned to his breast but with his left well forward and describing rapid circles as if winding in a kite.

Meyer lost no time. He crowded forward and let go a light left that missed. Gilmore skimmed away into a corner and out again with Meyer in keen pursuit. Gilmore side-stopped and as Meyer went flying by into the ropes Gilmore merely smiled without attempting to lead.

Again Meyer crowded, letting his another left. This Gilmore easily blocked and skipped away. They then seemed warmed to their work and the crowd was just settling down to see a dandy crap when Meyer made a queer move. His left described a huge circle in front and then the famous right was unlimbered for the first time. It flew out in half over-hand movement with every bit of the Meyer power behind it—and landed.

It fetched up against Gilmore's jaw with a resounding crack and the fight was over.

The veteran stiffened out with a moan and fell at full length on his back. His head hit the unpadded floor of the ring but that didn't make any difference in the result. Gilmore was about before he ever started to fall.

The referee was as surprised as any of the spectators and was a little slow in starting his count. But everybody knew that was a formality, pure and simple. There wasn't a tremor out of the silent form on the floor when Meyer and the Gilmore seconds picked him up and sat him in his chair. He didn't utter a sound.

In a few minutes he was all right. He opened his eyes in a dazed way and tried to get to his feet. Meyer was standing in front of him, worried a bit despite the joy-maddened throng of his own followers that crowded about.

There was a lump on Gilmore's jaw and it was discoloring rapidly. "Gee, is that where I hit you?" Meyer asked.

"I guess so," was Gilmore's equally foolish reply.

The battle lasted a minute and 28 seconds.

MONOGRAMS WILL BE AWARDED TO 23 MEN AT N. D.

Harper Announces Names of Athletes Who Won Letters in Baseball and Track—Mills
Leads Team Batting.

Director of Athletics Harper of Notre Dame has made public the names of the men who will be awarded baseball and track monograms for the season just closed. Thirteen men will receive their letters in baseball and 10 track monograms will be given out.

The names were submitted to the faculty board of athletic control of the university Monday and were approved by that body.

The following men will receive monograms in baseball: Capt. Dugan, Lathrop, Elward, Burke, Mills, M. Carmody, Bergman, Corcoran, Kline, Kenny, Motts, Wells and Walsh.

Track monograms will be given to the following men: Capt. A. Bergman, Mills, Hardy, Welch, McDonough, Eichenlaub, J. Miller, Bachman, Kirkland and Waack.

Four Letter Men.
Mills and Bergman each received monograms for baseball and track and are, consequently, four letter men for the year, having copied off letters in all four of the major branches of sport.

By winning four monograms, Bergman duplicated his feat of last year, when he set a new record at Notre Dame athletics. Last year, Mills won three letters, and by winning two first and tying for another first in the high jump this spring, he clinched a monogram in track, in addition to three letters.

Bergman was quarterback on the football team, forward on the basketball team, shortstop on the baseball team and a sprinter on the track team and captain of track. Mills was an end on the football team, center on the basketball team and a high jumper on the track team. Mills took first place in the high jump in the Indiana state meet.

Mills Leads Batters.
Rupe Mills tops the batters of the Notre Dame team for the season just closed with an average of .394, while "Dutch" Bergman is the leading base stealer with 25 swipes to his credit.

While "Pete" Motts, who really tops the list of batsmen with an average of .455, he played in only a few games, and Mills' average is the best of their regulars. Burke, who also played in only a few games, runs close to Mills with an average of .391. Capt. Dugan ranks next to Burke with .382 for the season. The other men in the .300 class are Kline, Corcoran and Lathrop.

Bergman is far ahead of the other Notre Dame players in the number of bases stolen. The fleet footed shortstop stole 25 sacks as against 18 for Mills, the second man. Capt. Dugan is third in number of bases stolen, with 12.

Batting Averages.
The batting averages and stolen bases for Notre Dame men for the season are as follows:

Player	Batting Average	Bases Stolen
Mills, c.	.394	16
Burke, rf.	.391	5
Dugan, c.	.382	12
Kline, 2b.	.358	8
Corcoran, 2b.	.319	6
Lathrop, lf.	.300	8
Elward, rf.	.296	9
Kenny, c.	.275	2
Bergman, ss.	.257	25
Carmody, 2b.	.185	2
Wells, c.	.150	0
Walsh, p.	.121	0

Carmody Unlucky.
"Mike" Carmody was the champion "hard luck" hitter of the season. The second baseman's average would have been considerably higher had some of his vicious drives veered a bit to the left or right, or had not sensational plays been made on balls hit by him, on several occasions.

"Rupe" Mills, who leads the batsmen for the year, was not only a heavy hitter, but a very consistent and delivered in the pinches.

PRACTICE RUNS TO START AT SPEEDWAY

Dario Resta, Runner Up in the Hoosier Event, Enters in Peugeot for Chicago Race.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Practice runs on the new motor speedway here will be made for the first time late Tuesday or Wednesday. The oval course was pronounced in excellent condition for speed trials and a number of drivers entered in the opening race on June 19 had their cars at the track ready to try out their mounts as soon as word was given that the course was open for practice. It was predicted that faster time would be made here than Ralph DePalma made a week ago Monday when he sent his Mercedes 500 miles for an average of better than 89 miles an hour.

Two Peugeot's and a Berwyn Special have been entered for the 500-mile race, bringing the total up to 23. Dario Resta, winner of the 1913 Vanderbilt and Grande Prize and runner up in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, and George Balbo, were named as pilots of the Peugeot's, which were entered by Arthur Z. Zucker, team manager for Peugeot, in the name of the Peugeot Import company of New York. Frank G. Zucker entered the Berwyn Special and announced he would drive the car. Resta will drive the same machine he handled in the last Hoosier race. It is one of the machines built by the Peugeot company for the Grand Prix at Amiens last year and is capable of more than 105 miles an hour. In the hands of Resta it made a remarkable showing on the Hoosier oval.

Stomach Trouble of Long Standing Yields to Duffy's

Many people who have suffered for years from the terrible effects of a disordered stomach are loud in their praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey; for, give to the stomach strength and perfect action and disease is invariably conquered. Duffy's is an ideal corrective of indigestion. Read what Mrs. Loring says:

"Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey cured me of stomach trouble from which I suffered for three years. After taking several bottles, I can truly attribute my complete recovery from stomach trouble to Duffy's Pure Malt."—Mrs. B. Loring, 5727 Market Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
